To Whom It May Concern:

RE: Letter of Reference for Mark Eaton

The Larry H. Miller group of companies is very diversified. It owns and operates 42 auto dealerships in six Western states, owns and manages the Utah Jazz NBA basketball team, owns and manages the Energy Solutions Arena where the Jazz play their games, owns and operates KJZZ television station, owns and operates Miller Motorsports Park, a 511 acre road racetrack, plus many other entities. The group employs over 6000 full and part-time employees. Mark Eaton was actually an employee of the Utah Jazz. Mark played his entire NBA career with the Utah Jazz. He was drafted by the Jazz and retired from the Jazz at the end of his career. One hallmark of Mark's tremendous career with the Jazz is that he is one of seven Jazz players to have their number retired by the team. That is a great credit to Mark.

Following Mark's retirement, he approached us to do some motivational speaking and training. We have used him to address our salespeople and others and have always received great reviews from our people. Mark has a great story to tell about finding a belief in one's self and then putting forth the energy to achieve what others may not have believed he could do. He has consulted with professionals in this field and with their help has put together a very professional presentation that is captivating and engaging for those who hear him speak.

I have appreciated our association with Mark and recommend him as one who can deliver beyond your expectations.
